Much uneasy speculation was caused with the United Press correspondent, Dr. Lucanus expresed great admiration of the Emperor's capacity for incesant work. The Emperor worked methodically, Dr. Lucanus said, and was aided by a fine memory. It was never necessary for him to write his speeches beforehand. He had always a skeleton of the subjects to be touched and, fills in the blanks as he made his address. After speaking he dictated to the chief of his cabinet the whole speech, usually without the slighest change as he remembered the slightest turn of a phrase. It was a rare occur-turn of a phrase. It was a rare occur-rence for him to hesitate even in recalling Vassar's Granddaughters.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y. Oct. t .-

The new students have now raised Vas-ear's roll to 450, and still more are expect-recognition was not given it, as two mem-bers were not deemed sufficient to estab-lish a society "for the promition of sociability among the daughters of alumnae."

But this year increases the roll to six, and the society will doubtless soon be ranked with other college organizations.
The new members are Miss E. L. Bishop, daughter of Miss H. Warner, 67.

op, daughter of Miss M. Warner, '61; Miss M. Baker, daughter of Miss M. Higginbothem, '65; Miss M. Ballie, daugh-ter of Miss M. Evans, '68, and Miss C, Tuttle, daughter of Miss K. Seely, '70. Miss Tuttle is the daughter of Professor Tuttle, of the University of Virginia.

Reld Up in the Street. PITTSBURG, Oct 3 .- Charles McHenry, aymaster of the Grosse Cut Glass Com-paymaster of the Grosse Cut Glass Com-pany, was held up by three men at Smith-field street and Seventh avenue, as noon yesterday, and robbed of over three hun-dred dollars. He drew the money from bank to pay off the office force. He left the bank with the cash in his inside coat pocket. At the corner of Seventh avenue he was caught from behind and held at the same moment two men in front

At the same moment two men in front of him grabbed for the money. Hundreds of pedestrians were on Smithfield street. The robbery had been committed and the three men disappeared before any attempt to catch them was made by the dazed specialors.

Professors and Their Pay.

President Harper, of the Chicago University, has been suggesting in a contemporary magazine that college professors should have more pay. None of them, he says, are paid as well as the head men in the business world. Only professors of the highest grade get as nuch as the lower grades of responsible officers of railroads and insurance companies, while the salaries of the lower class of professors compare with the wages of skilled workmen in the nechanical in-that the professors cannot keep up or what they are getting to say nothing of buying the books they need and spend-ing their vacations in improving travel

His preaching on the subject twins ab solutely with his practice, since, as wil be remembered, he is the indentical Presi dent Harper who was lately implicated in a successful conspiracy to bull the brains market by offering all the best professors in the world large pecuniary inducements to come to Chicago. His experience with professors has doubtless persuaded him that he knows what they most need, and he is probably right when

We all need larger salaries. If there was any immediat prospect that the profes-sors would get the increase that Dr. Harper recommends, not a word should be ut-tered here to hinder it. Inasmuch, how-ever, as no such prospects threatens, or can be blighted by argument, there is no

arm in recalling that except in the mat-harm in recalling that except in the mat-ter of pay the professor has one of the delightfulest of all the jobs. He has the long summer vacation that makes him the envied of all men except the preach-er. He does not have to neglect his mind, as other men do in order to focus his faculties on his work, but his very busi-ness in life is understood to be the cultiration and enlargement of his intellectuals. Every one is expected to sacrifice some-thing to success in his calling. What would the professor sacrifice if not money?

If he were adequately paid, what dams or barriers would suffice to keep the multi-tude from swooping down on the pedagog-

on which we who are not professors may circumstances encourage them to set the example of a comparatively frugal exist-ance. The professors, by continuing poor and at the same time highly respectable and agreeable, make it easier for us to keep our hold on plain living, and to re-

their summers, and whether or not their calling and swamping it with com-

ie suggests that it is more money

CHICAGO. CHICAGO, ILL, Oct. 3.-A moderate business was transacted in wheat to-day, and the fluctuations were still within the narrow limits that have marked the trade for some time past. The opening was weaker and about 1/6%c. lower than the close of yesterday. The market then advanced %c., but again eased off, prices declining %c., then held steadler, and the closing was %c. lower than yesterday. Corn-There was a good trade early, but later in the day less interest was displayed and the feeling at the close was rather easier than shown during the first part of the session. First trades were at an advance of 1/6/1/2c., and under a good demand from shorts, sold up 1/4 1/2c. more. After the early advance the prices declined %c., partly in sympathy with wheat, but railled afterwards, and closed 1,014c. higher than yesterday. Oats-The market for oats was feature-less, but the tone was steady, with trade light. The price for May ranged within 14c., and the close was 14c. higher than yesterday.

Provisions opened strong and higher on a lighter run of hogs at the yards and the report of light stocks of lard and the report of light stocks of lard on hand. Another element of strength was the support given January product by packers. Offerings were light and the volume of trade was consequently limited. A little later they increased, and prices, excepting for lard, declined. At the close the feeling was about steady. January pork closed 5c. higher, January lard 7%c. higher and January ribs unchanged. Commander Whiting to Wed a Chinese Maiden of Hawaii.

WASHINGTON,Oct. 3-The matrimonial alliance between Commander W. H. Williams, U. S. N., and Miss An Fong, the Chinese maiden of Hawaii, will soon be consummated. The only obstacle in the way has been removed by an order isway has been femous to the commander whiling from the commander of the Alliance and granting him a month; save of absence, with permission to apply for an extension.

This leave, it is understood, is desired by Commander Whiting for the purpose of going to San Francisco to meet and many his fiance, who just arrived there from Honolulu. He applied for it a month or more ago, but, on account of the troubles in Nicargua, the department was unwilling to have him leave Corinto, where the Alliance i now stationed.

A telegram has been received at the Navy Department from Commander Whitng, stating the affairs in Nicaragua were quiet. This was regarded that he was anxous to get away, and not wishing to stand longer in the way of the happy event, the order granting the leave was issued, and Commander T. A. Lyon was ordered to proceed from New York to Corinto to relieve him. Upon Commanfer Lyon's arrival at Corinto the Am-nce will start south on her voyage around the Horn to New York, where she is to e fitted up as a training ship. She will be relieved by the Yorktown, which has just arrived at Callao, Peru.

Miss Ah Fong is not a fuil-nicodea
China-woman. Her father, Ah Fong, drifted to the Sandwich Islands when young and single. He made a great deal of money in a very short time. He was always a good judge of the opium mar-ket. He married a wealthy Kanaka woman who lived near Honolulu. He has thirteen children. It is said that if he were to die to-day he would leave enough to give each of his children a million and a-half dollars. He is said to be shrewd, and also accentric. When Kalakhava was King, Ah Fong made him a present of $70,000. Subsequently, it is said. King Kalakaua threw a monopoly of the opium privilege into the hands of ne of Ah Fong's friends. Mr. Ah Fong is said to live in a magnificent home, and to be a member of the very best Kanakan society. Miss Etta Ah Fong is said to be his favorite daughter. She is described as being tail, siender and graceful, with a clear complexion, blue eyes and wavy brown hair. Her feet are celestially small, but they were not made so by wearing small snoes the Chinese fashion. She is cated and highly accomplished for a giri

THE EMPEROR RESTLESS.

Germany's Busy Ruler Hardly Takes Time

BERLIN, October 3 .- The Emperor Willam's deer stalking expedition in Sweden has been his only genuine holiday for many weeks. From his arrival at Gothenmany weeks. From an array of the boarded the hohenzoilern again at Karlskrona, on Saturday, no official dispatches were sent or received by him. Even this brief respite from state cares afforded him a more complete rest than he has taken before. Even in this recreation, the Emperor does what most men would deem hard work. On Thursday night, for instance, he went by rail from Gothenburg to Herl-junga, where he left the train at one o'clock on Friday morning. At six o'clock he was off with King Oscar and Prince Charles of Sweden to hunt deer. After dinner at the King's lodge, he left Herl-junga on his return trip in time to reach Neurahrwasser, near Dantzig, late last night.

Much uneasy speculation was caused by the police closing the harbor from the ferry to the sea, until after the Emperor had passed through going to his East Prussian lodge, at Romington, where he loined the Empress to-day. The precaution was unprecedented, and, combined with the known presence in Dantzig of an unusual number of private police from Berlin made the impression that the authorities were acting under the influence of the Anarchist panic. The Emperor, on leaving, had only the customary attendants around him. No special guards preceded him. His sojourn at Remington will be short. He will attend the consecration of a new chapel, pass a quiet day with the Empress, and to-morrow will be back to resume his usual duties.

The consensus of opinion among the officials round him is that he overexerts his body and brain, and will not long bear up under the strain. He does not sleep sufficiently at night, begins work in the early morning, and proceeds with feverish unrest throughout the day. Dr. Lucanus, chief of his private cabinet, finds it a trying task to keep up with the activity of his imperial master who openly chaffs him if business be not pushed ahead rapidly enough. In an interview with the United Press correspondent, Dr. Lucanus expressed great admiration of the Emperor's capacity for incesant work.

There may once have been a few grains of justice in these bush-els of fault-finding, but none would dare to make such assertions now. In a world that is full of rich people who confuse and fluster us by their elaborate scale of living we have reason to be grateful for the perpetuation of a few orders of men whose circumstances encourage them to set the busy with poble thoughts and plans, which her well-cared-for physique ena-bles her to transform into action. She wears the caps and takes the little naps which are necessitated by time's rude touch, but she is susceptible to all the beauties of life, and quite ready to add a grace to the domestic picture; her caps must be pretty, her dress becoming; and guarded and shielded by the love and care of her descendants of all ages, she is an essential part and ornament of the dear home circle, while to her all turn eagerly for the delightful stories beginning. But in the Anglo-Saxon reces the grandmother has a position beyond her dignity as such, and quite her own. In truth, one might say that she belongs to the privileged class in the righest and worthlest sense. Having brought up her own family and seen her nestlings take flight to new homes, she uses the leisure which she has so well earned in a more extended way. Naturally, she exercises her official right to spoil the little ones who brighten the homes of her sons and daughters, but she is careful not to interfere with the plans and purposes of the young parents. Said one of the pretiest and wisest, who had always shown herself to be a mother of rare tact and prudence. 1. THE REVERIES OF A BACHELOR; OR, A BOOK OF THE HEART. By IK. MARVEL (Donald G. Mitchell.) This American classic has enjoyed a world wide circulation at its price of 1.25. It is now offered for the first time at a nominal cost to our subscribers

How agreeable is "Ik. Marvel" in this gem of a book from his pen, how quaint, how humorous, philosophical, pathetic and charming.

2. LAYS OF ANCIENT ROME. By LORD MACAULAY. Beautifully lilustrated. Macaulay's "Lays" are instinct with the very soul of poetry, and are full of heroic action and energy. Like Scott's spirit-stirring ballads, they have a fine picturesque quality, with graphic breadth and great realistic power of expression. The English, no less than the Roman lays, have the breadth of the battlefield and the sounding notes of the charge to battle. The illustrations of this edition are unique, being executed in delicate outline.

3. A TILLYLOSS SCANDAL, By J. M. BARRIE.

A THEFICOSS SCANDAL. By J. M. BARRIE.

A new work by J. M. Barrie, author of the Scottish classic, "The Little Minister," which has had a phenomenal sale, may be expected to what the literary appetite of every intelligent reader of high-class fiction. In stories of humble Scottish peasant life, Mr. Barrie is on his own special ground. He knows the characteristics of the Scottish weaver and the peasant class as the sailor knows the sea. His sketches are full of a dry, quaint humor, with a strong realism and great force and directness of narrative power. Never, since Scott's day, has Lowland Scottish fiction had such an interpreter or so entrancing a depictor of character, lit up, at the same time, with odd situations and amusing or droil incident. or droll incident.

4. THE HOUSE OF THE SEVEN GABLES. By NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE. This masterpiece of Hawthorne's is full of the imaginative charm of romance. In felicity of touch, its author is unapproached by any writer since his own day. The work is, perhaps, the purest piece of poetic prose in all the range of American literature. 5. CRANFORD. By MRS. GASKELL. "Cranford," in its charming miniature painting and sketches of character, recalls the best of Jane Austen's novels. It is a delightful picture of old world social life in an English country village, descriptive of the feelings, habits, opinions, character and social conditions of the little community. The story is quiet earnestness and with fine literary aptitudes in the writer. It is beautifully illustrated.

6. THE COMING RACE. By LORD LYTTON.

"The Coming Race," by Lord Lytton, is a clever and ingenious excursion into the realm of science, as the inventive mind of man may find it in the coming time. It presents a curious but fascinating picture of the human environments, as we may see it realized in the next century, when human needs will be served by every resource of electrical and mechanical contrivance—when "the coming race," for instance, will be enabled to exchange domestic helps for ingenious and mercury-footed automatons, and have at command every appliance adapted to the marvellously changed social and industrial condition of things. The work is the product of a fanciful but rarely gifted and versatile mind.

7. DREAM LIFE. By IK. MARVEL (Donald G. Mitchell.)

There is a profound mental study in this world-wide American classic. It contains a series of very vivid and picturesque studies of individual character and feeling. It has a fascinating power over the reader, while its graceful diction charms the literary appreciation and fills the mind with delightful, though 8. FRANKENSTEIN; OR, THE MODERN PROMETHEUS. By MRS. SHELLEY

Like Mrs. Crowe's "Night Side of Nature," Mrs. Shelley's "Frankenstein" is a book every one should read. Its author has great imaginative powers and a weird but original genius. There are passages in "Frankenstein" that appail the mind and make the flesh creep. Once read, the book can hardly ever be for-9. A BOOK OF GOLDEN DEEDS. By C. M. YONGE.

This is just the book to put into the hand of youth, circulating a healthy morality, and true manly and womanly sentiments, Few books are better formed than this to develop and mould the tastes of the rising generation and encourage optimistic and patriotic ideas.

10. MOSSES FROM AN OLD MANSE. By NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE. Another delightful companion for idle hours is this collection of magazine papers, which Hawthorne entitled "Mosses from an Old Manse." Like all his works, it is distinguished for its simplicity and truth. Its high literary areal. lence commends it anew to public favor. 11. THE SCARLET LETTER. By NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE.

A romance of intense interest, exhibiting extraordinary power of mental analysis and graphic description. For an artistic exposition of Puritanism, as modified by New England colonial life, we have nothing like it in our literature. Like the best of Scott's novels, it is true at once to the local manners and scenic features of the age and place. 12. ESSAYS OF ELIA. By CHARLES LAMB.

These charming essays are full of a gay humor, interspersed with many ely hits, happy puns and bright scintillations of wit; carefully elaborated as they are, hits, happy puns and bright scintillations of wit; carefully elaborated as they are, hits, happy puns and bright scintillations of wit; carefully elaborated as they are, hits, happy puns and bright ease and composed in a spirit at they are written with the utmost ease and grace, and composed in a spirit at once delicate and unobtrusive. 13. VICAR OF WAKEFIELD. By OLIVER GOLDSMITH. 3. VICAR OF WAREFIELD. By OLIVER GOLDSMITH.

This beautifully illustrated edition of a famous English classic will increase its attractions for those who recognize the claim it has as essentially a "home book" for the whole reading world. Goldsmith has shed over the world the tenderest light of his genius, and the pastoral scenes in it are unrivalled, we tenderest light of his genius, and the pastoral scenes in it are unrivalled, we had almost said unapproached, by any other writer of fiction. As Sir Walter Scott said of it, "We read the Vicar of Wakefield in youth and in age, and return seed said, and bless the memory of an author who contrives so well Scott said of it, "We read the vicar of wakeheld in yourn and in age, and return to it again and again, and bless the memory of an author who contrives so well to reconcile us to human nature." The book, throughout its fascinating pages, exhibits all the characteristic traits of "Poor Poll"—a genial fancy, and the most diverting simplicity. 14. TWICE TOLD TALES. By NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE. 4. TWICE TOLD TALES. By NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE.

Hawthorne, the most distinctly American and by far the most popular of our writers, has given the world an undying book in "Twice-Told Tales." The stories being subsequently reprinted, are in reality "Twice-Told Tales." They have all

15. PAUL AND VIRGINIA. By BERNARDIN DE SAINT PIERRE. This idyllic story, by a classic French writer of the whicesome romantic school, this idyllic story, by a classic French writer of the whicesome romantic school, is an immortal book, and has won a place for itself in the homes of almost every people who possess a literature and can appreciate the work of gentus. It may, people who possess a literature and can appreciate the work of gentus. It may, with some literary propriety, be termed an idealized Robinson Crusoe, and it has with some literary propriety, be termed work. It is a book that is sure to go all the fascination of that renowned work. It is a book that is sure to go all the fascination of the description as well as edifying generations yet unborn.

16. STORY OF AN AFRICAN FARM. By (Ralph Iron) OLIVE SCHREINER. 16. STORY OF AN AFRICAN FARM. By (Raiph Iron) OLIVE SCHREINER.

Under the nom de plume of Raiph Iron, Miss Olive Schreiner has written an extraordinarily powerful story, full of graphic descriptions and the most appealing pathos. The author seems to have followed no recognized mode of romance, pathos. The author seems to have followed no recognized mode of romance, but struck out a new path in fiction for herself. Her novel consists of a series of studies illustrating the wild life of an orchard farm in South Africa, and setting before the reader, with striking vigor, the problems which trouble a strong ting before the reader, with striking vigor, the problems which trouble a strong ting before the reader, with striking vigor, the problems which trouble a strong ting before the reader, with striking vigor, the problems which trouble a strong ting before the reader, with striking vigor, the problems which trouble a strong ting before the reader, with striking vigor, the problems which trouble a strong ting before the reader, with striking vigor, the problems which trouble a strong ting before the reader, with striking vigor, the problems which trouble a strong ting before the reader, with striking vigor, the problems which trouble a strong ting before the reader, with striking vigor, the problems which trouble a strong ting before the reader, with striking vigor, the problems which trouble as trong ting before the reader, with striking vigor, the problems which trouble a strong ting before the reader, with striking vigor, the problems which trouble as trong ting before the reader, with striking vigor, the problems which trouble as trong ting before the reader, with striking vigor, the problems which trouble as trong ting before the reader, with striking vigor, the problems which trouble as trong ting before the reader.

Their popularity is not lessently rival in Macaulay's "Lays of Ancient Rome." Their popularity is not lessently repertoire of most elocutionists and platform deciaimers. Nor is popular appreciation affected by the fact that their author, in enshrining in patriotic and coulstirring verse the heroic incidents of Scottish history, takes the "Royalist"

18. LUCILE. By OWEN MEREDITH (Robert Lord Lytton.) S. LUCILE. By OWEN MEREDITH (Modert Lord Hydron,)
"Lucile," by the second Lord Lytton, late Governor-General of India and British Ambassador to Paris, is a novel in verse, with rhymed couplets, cast somewhat in the mould of Mrs. Browning's "Aurora Leigh." It is an enchanting story, with a strong admixture of romantic thought, plus fertility of inven-

Though unlike the "Story of an African Farm," "Dreams" has many of the characteristics which made Miss Schreiner's early work famous. The book is both interesting and suggestive, and, besides its high meditative qualities, is rich in the discussion of those mental and moral problems which this clever writer delights to propound to herself and lay before the thoughtful reader, "Dreams" is manifestly the work of a rare and uncommon mini.

"Black Beauty" is a horse, and the story Miss Sewell so feelingly tells us its autobiography. The tale well deserves its great popularity, for it is wonderfully realistic, and makes a strong appeal to those who love dumb animals and possess the instinct of common humanity. It is a took to charm and impress all who have to do with horses, especially those who seek to suppress that most senseless of all vices, cruelty to animals.
